Why Microfiber?

Microfiber cloth consists of microscopic strands that are interwoven into a fabric to fulfill certain characteristics depending on what the given product will be used for.

Microfiber is a synthetic man-made fiber. It is 1/100th the diameter of a human hair and 1/20th the diameter of a strand of silk. The microfiber from Victoria Bay is split during the manufacturing process to produce spaces in each fiber. If you were to look at a cross section of split microfiber it would look like an asterisk. It's the split fibers working in conjunction with the space between them that do the work. They pick up and hold the dust and dirt, and absorb liquid.

The advantages to using microfiber to clean are almost endless:

- Can last hundreds of washings when cared for properly
- Absorbs 7 times their weight in liquid
- Are hypoallergenic
- Don't need added chemical cleaners

Microfiber is a Green Cleaning solution as well. There isn't anything else on the market that cleans as effectively without using chemicals as microfiber. Other products rely on chemicals to do the cleaning and they just remove what the chemicals release from the surface. Microfiber does both. It loosens and removes debris from the surface.

Caring for Microfiber.

Follow these tips to ensure that your microfiber products perform at optimum efficiency:

- Do not launder with fabric softener.
- Do not exceed 160°F in wash or dry cycle.
- Peroxide bleach may be used in laundering.
- It is best to launder microfiber separately from other fabrics such as cotton.
- Microfiber will release soil, lint, etc. with agitation and rinse.
